

Category 1: Time Management

Category 2: Organization

Category 3: Motivation

Category 4: Knowledge

Category 5: App Design/Experience

Students forget deadlines or they don't expect the workload.

Kennedy Miller

There are too many apps and platforms, and one app is helpful for all assignments.

Kennedy Miller

Students may not have the motivation to plan ahead

Kennedy Miller

Students do not know proper time management strategies.

Kennedy Miller

"Add New Assignment" page with the course name, due date, and priority fields.

Kennedy Miller

Automatic reminders may be needed for any upcoming events.

Kennedy Miller

Assignments, exams, and projects would be scattered everywhere without the proper organization.

Kennedy Miller

Progress tracking encourages students to be more consistent.

Kennedy Miller

Short tutorials can be used, or in-app guidance.

Kennedy Miller

Subtask breakdown lines below each major task.

Kennedy Miller

Break big assignments into smaller, or more scheduled tasks.

Kennedy Miller

Course-based organizations would be most useful for the assignments.

Kennedy Miller

Streaks could be added to ensure students keep up with the work.

Kennedy Miller

Suggest some schedule, or planning tips for completing the work.

Kennedy Miller

Dark/light mode based on the users choice.

Kennedy Miller

"Smart alters" will be good for high priority deadlines.

Kennedy Miller

Need to sort tasks by class, date, or difficulty level.

Kennedy Miller

Accountability from peers or group planning helps with getting work done.

Kennedy Miller

Help students balance between life, and coursework.

Kennedy Miller

Clear icons and labels for navigation of the app.

Kennedy Miller

Customize reminders by priority(A, B, C).

Kennedy Miller

Color-coded system would help for clarity.

Kennedy Miller

A study mode for the app can include a timer or something to improve focus.

Kennedy Miller

Help students build confidence through structure.

Kennedy Miller

Privacy and data security must be ensured for the user.

Kennedy Miller